IT'S A DASH TO THE FINISH! Telstar's David Foster (right) and two Sacopee rivals break into a sprint as they near the end of a recent cross-country race on the Telstar course. The three finished within seconds of one another—but all three were behind the winner of the race, Telstar's Nathan Miserocchi. The Rebels competed in the Mountain Valley Conference championships last weekend, with the girls coming in third. This weekend it's on to the regional championships; the following weekend is the state championship.

Property dispute led Rainey to kill, prosecutor says

"Let me assure you of one thing right up front... we can either do this the easy way or the hard way," Superior Court Justice Carl O. Bradford warned Gary M. Rainey Tuesday morning, prior to the second day of the 62-year-old Locke Mills man's murder trial at Oxford County Superior Court in South Paris.

The justice's admonition, delivered before the jury was allowed to file into the courtroom, was in response to an alleged threat by the defendant to "go out a window" if he found the opportunity. The threat, coupled with Mr. Rainey's uncooperative behavior during the previous day's jury selection (during which he repeatedly objected to the selection process and demanded that his defense attorney, Robert Russell, of Bethel, withdraw from the case), led the justice to warn the defendant that if he attempted to disrupt the proceedings he would be forced to watch the trial over television from a separate room in the courthouse.

The defendant—who was dressed in a gray suit and pink tie, and had grown full gray hair in the year since his arraignment—acknowledged the warning and sat quietly as opening statements in the case were presented to a jury of seven men and five women.

He is charged with the Oct. 22, 1988 murder of his stepdaughter Kimberly Shriver, 29, and her boyfriend Christopher Grecka, 31, and with the attempted murder and aggravated assault on his stepson, Barry L. Coolidge, 27.

The couple was beaten and shot to death in the home they shared on Middle Intervale Road, in Bethel. The assault on Mr. Coolidge took place earlier at a house on Bird Hill Road, in Locke Mills.

Ms. Shriver and Mr. Coolidge were the children of Mr. Rainey's estranged wife Madeline.

In the prosecution's opening statement, Assistant Attorney General Eric Wright told the jury that the state planned to call approximately 20 witnesses and had "an abundant amount of evidence" tying Mr. Rainey to the murders and assault.

According to the state's version of events, Mr. Rainey shot the victims after he became enraged over a domestic dispute involving real estate.

Prior to his 1988 marriage to the former Madeline Coolidge, of Locke Mills, Mr. Rainey had purchased the house on Bird Hill Road. The property was later used as collateral for a home-improvement loan taken out jointly with her.

In June of last year, she left him and moved to Michigan—in part, the state contends, because of threats from Mr. Rainey. Before she left, however, the Rebel teams ready for playoffs

Stickers riding high

In an exciting defensive battle Monday afternoon, the Telstar Regional High School field hockey team avenged an early season loss to defending Western Maine Class C champion Winthrop—thus virtually ensuring that Telstar will have the homefield advantage for at least part of the playoffs beginning next week.

The game-winning goal came at only 4:30 of the first half, as Kris Delano scored off a penalty corner, with an assist by Jenn Bailey.

Throughout the remainder of the game the Rebels had not a single additional penalty-corner opportunity, while the visiting Ramblers had 18 such chances. But the Rebel defense, playing in its own end for much of the game, shut the Ramblers down, holding on for an impressive 1-0 victory.

Going into tomorrow's (Wednesday's) regular season finale with always-powerful Dirigo, the Rebels boast a 10-2-1 record, which should mean they'll be starting out the playoff on their own turf.

Co-coaches Sally Hannon and Gail Wight attribute the excellent season to an

Soccer players waiting

As of press time yesterday (Tuesday) afternoon, the Telstar High School soccer team was still waiting to learn whether its season ended Monday afternoon or will continue in playoff action tomorrow.

A 2-1 loss to Leavitt on Monday left the Rebels with a regular season record of 4-10 and uncertain prospects for a playoff spot.

"I think we've still got a shot at it," Coach Bob Remington said in regard to the final playoff spot.

The coach acknowledged that the Rebel booters will have their work cut out for them should they make the playoffs. They will start off against the highest seeded teams in Western Maine Class C, and they won't see the home field advantage at any point in the playoffs.

"We'll be a definite underdog, but sometimes that can work to your advantage," the coach said optimistically.

Last year the Rebels captured the Mountain Valley Conference title, but Monday's loss locked them into last place

TELSTAR'S AMY HANNON knocks the ball downfield during Saturday's make-up game against Jay. Both teams played good defense, with Jay turning aside a number of Telstar scoring opportunities. The game wasn't decided until the second half, when Telstar's Shilo Hutchins scored off a pass from Kris Delano. The girls finish up regular season play today (Wednesday) and should be a top contender in the playoffs.

Recycling bins go in Thursday at Bethel landfill

The Town of Bethel will get its first recycling container tomorrow (Thursday). The selectmen had, last month, (over Arthur Gilbert's dissenting vote) decided it should be placed at the landfill. Mr. Gilbert and members of the Solid Waste Committee had urged placing it in the village in order to encourage recycling.

The container will have separate bins for bottles, plastics, etc., although newspapers will continue to be placed in the existing recycling shed at the landfill. (Solid Waste Committee Chairman Dick Hosterman told the selectmen Monday night that the Adult Activity Center, in Rumford, which operates the newspaper shed, is once again willing to pick up papers left there.)

Brian Rogers, head of the BAR Corporation, from which the town is leasing the recycling container, said experience is showing that plastic containers, such as milk containers, have been proving the most popular items being deposited in his containers in other towns. In fact, he told the selectmen, there are so many milk containers in some of his recycling trailers that he is having to go around and remove some of the excess in order to keep the trailers in use—where they are.

Under normal use, BAR Corporation will exchange the full container for an empty one when all the bins are full or near-full. The cost to the town is $35 a week for each week the container sits at the landfill, plus $70 each time it's hauled away. The benefit to the town—if residents recycle their trash—is that each ton recycled means a ton less that has to be trucked to a landfill, thus eliminating both trucking and tipping fees. "I've got a feeling it's going to come out on top when everything gets settled in," Mr. Rogers told the board, concerning the future of recycling. He noted that the Legislature has mandated that one-half of all trash is to be recycled by 1994.

Mr. Rogers urged local residents to crush their plastic containers before putting them in the recycling container, in order to save precious space. He said all plastic containers can be accepted in the container as long as they are not transparent and do not have a shiny surface. He said tops should be removed from the containers. He noted that "There's a good market for plastic right now."

As for glass bottles, he said it is now acceptable to lump the brown glass bottles and the green glass bottles together. Clear glass, however, must be dealt with separately.

Newly also got into the recycling mode this week. That town's BAR Corp. container arrived Tuesday next to the municipal building.

In other business Monday night, the Bethel selectmen approved the purchase of a new roll sander for the Highway Department, at a cost of $1,200. The vote

Honor roll at Telstar will continue to include physical education grades

It appears that physical education grades will continue to carry full weight when it comes time to calculate the Telstar honor roll.

A move to factor P.E. grades out of honor-roll calculations has apparently run its course in various school board committees, without resulting in any changes in the current system.

The move has, however, led the P.E. department to begin sending out progress reports, which will allow parents and students to get some idea of how a

Parents' Weekend starts this Friday at Gould Academy

This year's Gould Academy Parents' Weekend, Oct. 20-22, will bring visiting parents from throughout the country to the Bethel campus, to be brought up to date on recent campus activities and on students' academic work. The Fourth Annual Gould Parents' Auction and Fall Feast will highlight the weekend.

The weekend begins with parent/teacher conferences in Bingham Gymnasium on Friday, 7-9:30 p.m. Head-

Hundreds turn out to mourn passing of Lt. Bill Williams

The Methodist Church, in Bethel, (Tuesday) afternoon, who had come to pay their last respects to Lt. Bill Williams of the Oxford County Sheriff's Department.

Lt. Williams died of a heart attack last Friday night while on his way to the sheriff's office, in South Paris. He was taking a runaway 14-year-old to the office where his parents, of Gilead, were waiting. A neighbor said Lt. Williams could have had one of the other officers who helped capture the juvenile take him in but he chose to do it himself.

Sheriff Al Howe said it was because the lieutenant knew the family and they would feel better if he had custody of their son. The sheriff said Lt. Williams had already put in a full day's work. "Again, he went the extra mile." This was not unusual for Lt. Williams, the sheriff added. "Bill was a very dedicated man. He always went the extra mile."

Cpl. Harold Savage, of the Maine State Police, said, "He was the type of person (young people) could all come and talk to."

Recent changes to the federal government's safe drinking water legislation mandated costly improvements in water districts that don't have filtration plants.

Mr. Spidell said the Andover district hopes to be able to develop wells to replace the open water as the source of supply for the system, instead of spending money for filtration.

"I don't know if we will be successful (in raising the money)," he said, "but something has to be done by June of 1992 and there are no exceptions."

New septic going in at Andover Town Hall

At last Thursday night's meeting of the Andover Board of Selectmen it was decided to put in a new septic system at the Town Hall immediately. Since a dance is being held there on Oct. 28 the installation is considered an emergency situation. The ground was dug up and the condition of an old metal tank and the presence of a blocked line to the field necessitates a whole new system.

In other matters that will cost money, the selectmen discussed getting themselves more town office space—either adding to it or perhaps renovating a room in the Town Hall.

"Something has to be done as soon as

Bethel voters deserve kudos

Bethel Town Meeting is to be commended for asking all the right questions during last Tuesday night's discussion of the mess in the Bethel sewer system. While the action taken by the voters was to borrow an additional $380,000 (for a total of $860,000) for sewer plant repairs to be repaid from taxation, the really important business of the evening was the fact that the voters told the selectmen they were not happy with the way the municipal sewer system was being managed.

A number of people asked why the selectmen wanted to repair the plant when it was clear that the main problem was the leaking sewer lines. The selectmen's consultant, John Fancy, explained that it was the DEP that was pushing for the plant to be fixed first and the sewer lines later.

A number of people then asked why town officials could not negotiate with the DEP to either change the schedule of work or to delay the expensive plant repairs until grant monies could be found. Mr. Fancy replied, "Bethel is not in a good position to negotiate with the DEP." The reason, he said, was that the DEP had watched for the past 15 years while town officials did nothing to stop the flow of raw sewage into the Androscoggin River.

This caused Jack Greig to comment, "The only way we've got is to pay an $860,000 bill because the selectmen and the former town managers did nothing. I don't see how you can do anything but blame it on the people who are here today and those who were in office previously."

And Karl Hansen added: "We need management we can believe in." He suggested a new board, other than the selectmen, to manage the sewer system.

While not wishing to relinquish control over the sewer system, the selectmen have voted to form a committee to look at the problems in the sewer system with an eye to recommending a schedule of work and a scheme for paying for the work. Board Chairman Arlan Jodrey told Town Meeting, "We need your help," as he sought volunteers for this proposed committee.

The committee idea was the brainchild of Selectwoman Pat Doen, who originally saw it as a way of putting off a decision on the question of who should repay the additional $360,000 loan. From that humble beginning, the board broadened the concept of what the committee might be asked to do.

What will be important to watch will be the charge the selectmen give the committee. So far, the committee's duties are still in the talking stage. If the charge will allow the committee to function as an oversight committee, looking at the history of the troubled plant as well as future remedies, the group could be a big help in charting a new course for the municipal sewer.

One last footnote to the special town meeting: While all the selectmen had definite views on who should repay the additional $380,000 loan, only Selectman Arthur Gilbert rose to stand and be counted when the vote was taken on having the repayment come from general taxation. Mr. Gilbert voted against the motion. The other selectmen present did not take a public stand on the issue. The vote total, as reported last week, was 96 for the motion and 83 against.

Newry voters decide to build second fire station

About 25 voters turned out for Monday night's special town meeting in Newry. After some discussion, the voters approved the concept of building a second fire station—this one to be on the Sunday River Road. The town already has a fire station in the Bear River section, next to the municipal building.

Voters backed up the concept by allocating $15,000 for land purchase, planning and site development, including septic and water installation. The money will come from the Fire Department's capital fund.

Those speaking in favor of the concept noted that it takes too long for town pumps to get from the present fire station to the Sunday River side of town. Others, however, pointed out that it seemed likely the two sides of town would ultimately be joined by a road over the hills.

As a footnote, the Newry firefighters—along with Bethel firefighters—were called out Sunday to fight a stubborn woods fire in Riley Township.

At Monday night's meeting, voters also approved the transfer of $5,000 to the comprehensive site planning account to cover deficits, the money to come from the tree growth account.

Second driveway allowed for new ski shop/condos

The Bethel Planning Board last Wednesday night approved a change in the design of the new ski shop being constructed on the Sunday River Road. The change allows a second driveway to be constructed into the property, making a total of two. The long-range plan for the property also envisions townhouse condo units next to the ski shop.

The board expressed disapproval with the types of signs at another ski shop in town, Fort Sports. The signs erected at the shop have been a bone of contention between the board and the Mountain View mall since the store opened, last year.

The board also discussed proposed changes in the local subdivision regula-

A note from the publisher

I was off on a week's vacation this past week, returning just in time to get to Bethel's special town meeting and write a story for last week's paper. But more of that is in this week's editorial.

During my week off, I traveled to places with problems that make Bethel's sewer mess look like just a bit of chop on an otherwise calm ocean. But more of that later.

My vacation took me first to Annapolis, Md., where I felt like a fish out of water in a sea of blue blazers. It was the 20th annual United States Sailboat Show—the largest sailboat show in the country—and it seemed that anyone who knew port from starboard (plus many who didn't) was there. And most were wearing blue blazers. Although I did talk with one salesman who was, with utter disregard of seamanlike sartorial decorum, decked out in a green blazer with a greenish tie that had too much blue in it to do anything but clash with the blazer. I thought it was a small victory for individualism.

The boats, unfortunately, also tended to look very much alike. Whereas decades ago cruising sailboats had large, uncluttered cabins below-decks and broad decks topside, the new accepted wisdom is to design boats with three or more "staterooms" below and narrow decks topside. The former, open deck areas have been taken over by large, raised cabin-tops to allow more headroom below. The upshot is that the once-cozy cabins have been eliminated so that boatbuilders can advertise that their designs have three or more "staterooms" (which are more like cubicles) and the once easily traveled decks now require careful navigating by anyone trying to walk from cockpit to bow, or back.

What is so discomfiting about the almost universal acceptance of this theory of sailboat design is that it eliminates choice for the consumer. What the majority of consumers think they want is what all consumers are offered. It's a lot like the political parties in this country. If you can tell the difference between a Republican and a Democrat—aside from political patronage—go to the head of the class. That's why the Republicans have jumped on the flag issue, trying to make it a partisan issue. They want us to believe that the difference between the two parties is that Republicans love the flag more than Democrats. If that's the main difference, we're in trouble.

And, in fact, we are in trouble. There are no new ideas coming from our politicians because they all try to please the majority—like the boat designers. Things were not always thus. Nor are they in other countries. Even in some so-called communist nations there are now the Communists and the Socialists. Here, unfortunately, we're stuck with Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

But that is not what I was thinking as I walked on and around the 500 sailboats on display and I don't know how many booths for companies selling everything from binoculars to boat insurance. I was thinking, Wow, there's a lot of money in this country to buy boats like these. Most of them were the sort of machines that if you had to ask the price, you probably couldn't afford it.

I was in on Thursday—a day supposedly reserved for members of the boat industry and the press. However, tickets were being sold at the ticket booths for $20 each, and there were plenty of takers, so the docks were crowded. I also went to the show on Friday—the official opening of the show—and things were even more crowded. It belied the complaint of boat industry people that yacht sales are in a slump—same as condo sales it seems.

Whether or not the hordes of attendees—50,000 for the four-day show—bought many boats I didn't stay to find out. But I learned that they certainly did help the local economy. The inns, hotels and motels were booked solid. I watched one man plead—in vain—with a desk clerk for a room as he and his family had arrived by taxi from the airport and had nowhere to go, and no way to get anywhere.

City leaders estimate that the sailboat show, followed by the powerboat show, together generate $14 million in revenue for the local economy.

And it's not just businesses that rake it in. Right across from the city dock where all the action was taking place was a small elementary school. The local PTA turned the school's ample lawns into an instant parking lot and was parking cars at $5 a day. The Elks did the same at their large clubhouse lawn, charging $4 a day and providing free bus service to get the patrons the three miles to downtown. One Elk told me they would park between 700 and 1,000 cars a day. "Found money" was the term he used for the business.

Anyone who has ever docked a boat, or watched a docking operation as it approaches the confusion involved in docking 350 boats—the remaining 150 were on land. In fact, the organizers begin a year in advance and give the exhibitors a set time on when each boat has to be tied up which of the four set-up days. Whether a boat is sailing in from Europe—as one did—or simply coming from one of the tributaries of Chesapeake Bay, it must be ready for docking at its assigned time and place or else it doesn't get in the show.

I gathered that one of the more interesting side-shows at the sailboat show occurs on the final day when the temporary docks that are nested perpendicular and parallel to the city dock—to form a series of connected squares—are taken apart so that the inner boat can float free. Apparently some aggressive watering takes place on what time the last bridge will be broken.

But I was going to tell you about problems I noticed that make our own sewer problems seem insignificant by comparison. For starters, Chesapeake Bay, which used to be home to a valuable fishing industry, is dying. When I used to visit Annapolis during a Navy tour of duty in nearby Washington, D.C. (nearly 30 years ago), it was a fishing town and a boating town. The waterfront was boatyards, fishing docks, sail lofts and some good, plain seafood restaurants.

Now the fishing boats are gone. In fact everything I remember on the waterfront is gone. It's all been replaced by swank restaurants with fern bars, fancy bottles, and yuppie ice cream stores selling $1.50 single-scoop cones.

Along the main street is also the office of the Save the Bay organization, which is leading a fight to have pollution of the bay controlled and limits placed on commercial fishing until the fish populations can regenerate themselves.

But even a dead bay seemed like a small problem next to the problems in the nation's largest city—New York City. I had hoped to stop there for a couple of days and take in a couple of three shows or plays. From the moment I drove out of the Lincoln Tunnel into midtown Manhattan I could see that it wasn't a good idea. From the gloom of the tunnel one emerges into the glare of daylight and into the midst of a small army of drunk and half-drunk black men, either collapsed on the sidewalks or panhandling among the cars trying to move through the clogged streets.

Looking for small hotels I knew from visits in years past I found only one, and it was closed for renovation. I tried a hotel a few blocks away and decided against it when told the rate was $150 a night.

Just trying to drive in the Big Apple is like having a bit part in The Road Warrior. Lanes mean nothing; traffic lights mean little more than nothing; crosswalks mean nothing; rights-of-way are unheard of. Hobbes was right: unfettered freedom is anarchy, and freedom must be restricted in order for society as a whole to function freely. In New York City, selfishness winds up as gridlock, and time, money and humanity are the losers.

Nevertheless, despite the dirt and blowing papers and trash, and despite the cabby horns and unruly pedestrians, and despite the turn-of-the-century and grime-covered buildings, there is a vitality to New York and to New Yorkers. They shout, gesticulate, argue, smile, curse; in short, they communicate. Which is something not commonly done in more civilized towns and cities.

In Rueben's Delicatessen, at 3rd Avenue and 38th Street—from whence the Rueben Sandwich originated, a young woman was trying to decide which Danish pastry to buy. She asked the woman at the cash register if one she was eyeing had almond paste. "Which one?" I don't know which one you're talking about. Hold it up," said the cash register woman. "Don't get angry at me," said the customer. "I'm not getting angry, I'm trying to help you," said the first. The sale was consummated, and no feelings were irreparably hurt.

I, by the way, did not have a Rueben

Sandwich; rather, I opted for corned beef, piled high on homemade rye bread, with a half-sour pickle and washed down with a cream soda. Only in New York can one find such food in such surroundings. And also Korean, Indian, Mexican, Chinese, Middle East—you name it—plus the immigrants who make their native foods.

Also on my trip, which covered 1,500 miles by car, I realized what the main problem is with America—and it's Eisenhower's fault. Quite simple: it's our freeways. First, they're not free. They keep us broke repairing them. Second, they led to a great upsurge in automotive travel, which means more petroleum needed, which means more air pollution, which also means more drilling in fragile environments such as Alaska, plus oil spills in pristine waters, and so on and so on.

For those old enough to recall what America looked like before the end of the rail era, there were cities where the big businesses were and there were largely self-sufficient towns with necessary commercial outlets. There were no shopping malls; there were no suburbs. Mail and newspapers arrived twice a day by rail.

With the demise of the railroad and the spread of asphalt, the rise of two- and three-car families and the growth of suburbia, small town business suffered, the environment suffered, and national, state and local budgets suffered. But Detroit prospered.

It is not too late to try to reverse the decline of small-town America. The first thing to do is to allow the freeways to revert to pastureland and begin putting money back into railroads.

When I moved to this area five years ago, one of the first things I asked about was the congestion on Rte. 26 and what could be done about it. I've now come to the conclusion that Rte. 26 should be left as is. Our energies should be directed to getting passenger rail service once again from Montreal to Portland and on to Boston. It worked before; it should work again.

Bethel—and all of Oxford County—lost a valuable citizen last Friday when Bill Williams suffered a heart attack while on duty in his cruiser in Bryant Pond.

Bill always had a smile for everyone—the law-abiding as well as the lawless—and sought to help the latter while protecting the former. As his daughter Tanya said, "My daddy—he was well-loved by everyone. I don't think there was anyone who didn't like him."

Bill was a fixture in the community and always had time to talk with you. At noon you could likely find him waiting for his wife Dolores to take her to lunch. It's a sad commentary on life that he was taken away so early. And, like Job, we have no real answer as to why.

It has to be sufficient that he was here and was the sort of good person he was. Our concern now is for Dolores and the rest of the family. The entire community grieves with them.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

I have always done what I thought was in the best long-term interests of the town of Bethel.

Because I care more about the long-term security of America than I do about myself, I must now face the liberals' accusations surrounding the "Iran-Contra affair."

And as I stand, one man, alone against the massive onslaught of liberal special interests who want to imprison me for serving my country, I must turn to you [and your readers] for help.

I am preparing to defend myself in open court against the outrageous charges that have been filed. I need to know I have your support.

As my family and friends face the pain of seeing me savaged on the nightly news, I need to know you will help me. And as I face personal financial debts far beyond my ability to pay in my attempt to defend myself, I need to know you still appreciate me as I did.

The Independent Counsel assigned to prosecute me in the Iran-Contra matter has run up bills of over $20 million in taxpayer money—your money—in this effort to vilify me.

And after raising my family and educating my five sons on a Navy salary, I can't begin to match that kind of spending to defend myself.

I am not a wealthy man.

While I can't actually tell you about any information directly relating to my trial, I can tell you that there is only reason why I am being put through this ordeal...political revenge.

When I testified before the Iran-Contra panels, you saw how the liberals in Congress took great pleasure in making speeches to me about patriotism and honor.

Let me tell you today I am proud of my patriotic naval service and my honorable service to President Reagan.

I am proud of each day of my naval career and of my position as National Security Advisor.

But the liberals in Congress wanted to deny the Reagan presidency any way they could.

When they found that they were going to be unsuccessful, they turned on me. During the televised "investigative hearings," the liberals repeatedly berated me for the benefit of the cameras.

The liberals participated in nothing less than political partisan grandstanding at my expense.

They attacked my 30-year naval career and service to America.

And now I must stand trial to defend myself against their accusations.

Because I believe in the same things that you and Ronald Reagan do, I must now defend myself.

Because the liberals do not understand the depth of the national security crisis America now faces, I must continue to fight for what is right.

Let me tell you one more thing, my friend: Like any career military officer, I saw my duty, and I did my job. Nothing more or nothing less.

And I know in my heart that I do not deserve the $5 years and $1.5 million in fines I now face.

Yet, for their political purposes, the liberals are determined to drag this process to its conclusion.

And they have no problems paying out millions to the special prosecutor in the private attorney on my case.

Meanwhile, I am faced with my own growing stack of legal expenses...and growing financial insecurity.

I don't have the liberals bankrolling my defense. I don't have an unlimited staff working on my case.

And while I have every confidence in my attorneys, I do not know how I am going to pay for the expenses I am incurring.

I'm not a man, alone against the wave of anti-conservative feeling that now controls our U.S. Congress.

I'm only one man, who cares more about protecting freedom around the world than about winning a seat in the next election.

I'm only one man, standing up to fight for what the American flag really means to people struggling to be free.

I'm only one man...and the liberals wish me silence.

The liberals want me bankrupt or imprisoned.

That's why I had to write to you today. As a former U.S. Navy admiral, I'm used to giving orders, not asking for help.

But today, for the future security of my family, I must ask you to help me.

I ask you to make your most generous contribution to the Poindexter Defense Fund.

This special fund was set up by three former U.S. Navy admirals who believe in the ideals you and I share.

Today, I would consider it an honor if you would help.

The Poindexter Defense Fund is the only organization I have authorized to raise funds on my behalf.

And you can rest assured that, outside of unavoidable overhead expenses, your contribution dollar will go straight to help my defense.

Remember, the special prosecutor has a $20 million budget so far to building a case against me.

Now I am turning my back on a $20 million budget and a $20 million case against me.

problems seem insignificant by comparison. For starters, Chesapeake Bay, which used to be home to a valuable fishing industry, is dying. When I used to visit Annapolis during a Navy tour of duty in nearby Washington, D.C. (nearly 30 years ago), it was a fishing town and a boating town. The waterfront was boatyards, fishing docks, sail lofts and some good, plain seafood restaurants.

Now the fishing boats are gone. In fact everything I remember on the waterfront is gone. It's all been replaced by swank restaurants with fern bars, fancy bottles, and yuppie ice cream stores selling $1.50 single-scoop cones.

Along the main street is also the office of the Save the Bay organization, which is leading a fight to have pollution of the bay controlled and limits placed on commercial fishing until the fish populations can regenerate themselves.

But even a dead bay seemed like a small problem next to the problems in the nation's largest city—New York City. I had hoped to stop there for a couple of days and take in a couple of three shows or plays. From the moment I drove out of the Lincoln Tunnel into midtown Manhattan I could see that it wasn't a good idea. From the gloom of the tunnel one emerges into the glare of daylight and into the midst of a small army of drunk and half-drunk black men, either collapsed on the sidewalks or panhandling among the cars trying to move through the clogged streets.

Looking for small hotels I knew from visits in years past I found only one, and it was closed for renovation. I tried a hotel a few blocks away and decided against it when told the rate was $150 a night.

Just trying to drive in the Big Apple is like having a bit part in The Road Warrior. Lanes mean nothing; traffic lights mean little more than nothing; crosswalks mean nothing; rights-of-way are unheard of. Hobbes was right: unfettered freedom is anarchy, and freedom must be restricted in order for society as a whole to function freely. In New York City, selfishness winds up as gridlock, and time, money and humanity are the losers.

Nevertheless, despite the dirt and blowing papers and trash, and despite the cabby horns and unruly pedestrians, and despite the turn-of-the-century and grime-covered buildings, there is a vitality to New York and to New Yorkers. They shout, gesticulate, argue, smile, curse; in short, they communicate. Which is something not commonly done in more civilized towns and cities.

In Rueben's Delicatessen, at 3rd Avenue and 38th Street—from whence the Rueben Sandwich originated, a young woman was trying to decide which Danish pastry to buy. She asked the woman at the cash register if one she was eyeing had almond paste. "Which one?" I don't know which one you're talking about. Hold it up," said the cash register woman. "Don't get angry at me," said the customer. "I'm not getting angry, I'm trying to help you," said the first. The sale was consummated, and no feelings were irreparably hurt.

The Board of Directors of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce agreed at our meeting on Oct. 12 to update our foliage tour maps that we distribute hundreds of each year.

We would like to accept suggestions from area residents on their favorite foliage tours in the Bethel area as well as special vistas.

Funny stories, historical data and pertinent information will be incorporated on these "four sheets" as well as credit to the submitters.

Please either bring these to the Chamber Office or send them to P.O

student is doing in P.E. The argument for changing the current system was raised by parents concerned that unathletic students would be excluded from the honor roll because of poor P.E. grades—even if they received top marks in all their other courses.

At their request, the SAD #44 Board of Directors formed an ad hoc committee to study the question. The committee ultimately recommended that no changes be made in the way the honor roll is calculated.

This recommendation was accepted by the full board at its meeting late last month.

Following that vote, however, a number of questions remained in the minds of parents who had supported the change. Sue Wight, Nancy Grover and Leslie Cooley—all members of the ad hoc committee—wrote a memo to the board contending that "many of our concerns were not addressed in the forum of the [committee] due to the limited scope of our committee charge."

They went on to ask the board to look further at nine specific and detailed questions, most dealing with various aspects of how the P.E. grade is arrived at and how it fits into honor roll calculations.

The board returned the questions to its education committee, which took them up at a meeting last week. At that meeting, the three committee members present (Chairman John Foster, Alison Aloisio and Rex Thurston) discussed the question for nearly an hour with the parents, physical-education staff and school administrators.

The physical-education staff members argued that it was very rare for a physical education grade to keep a student from making the honor roll.

Levi Brown pointed out that 87 percent of last year's P.E. grades were B- or better (the bottom limit for honor roll students). Of the 13 percent of students who ended up with lower grades, he said, "I guarantee you they got C's in other courses."

The staff also argued that innate athletic ability counted for only part of a student's total grade, so an unathletic student could bring up his or her overall grade by solid performance on quizzes, good attendance, conduct and attitude.

Such students also had the opportunity of selecting low-impact activities (for example, frisbee golf) where ability played a relatively minor role.

The staff also noted that in response to concerns raised at the earlier ad hoc committee meetings, they were now sending home progress reports whenever a student completed an activity.

Rex Thurston commented, however, that the present format of the progress report cards made it difficult for a parent to figure out what a student's overall grade for the activity would be. The staff and school officials agreed to try to come up with a way to include that information.

The committee eventually voted unanimously to recommend that the board leave the present system intact. This recommendation will be reported to the board at its next meeting, Oct. 23.

In the conference, "We were fighting for last place," the coach said, "and we won."

With only four returning lettermen, Coach Remington knew from the start that this was not going to be an easy year, but he had hoped for at least a .500 season.

The biggest surprise of the year, he said, was that the team lost as many games as it did.

The major problem this season would be very familiar to any fan of the region's professional football franchise—the squad boasts a solid defense, but has no offensive punch.

The defense allowed fewer points all year than in some years when the team ended up with winning records, the coach said, but the offense just couldn't put the ball in the goal at the other end of the field.

Last year, two players each scored 18 goals; this year the entire team could only manage 18.

This year's team is a physically small squad for a school without a football program, the coach said. But, on a more positive note, most of them will be back next year—with a year's more growth and a year's more experience.

And ready, no doubt, to continue the winning Telstar soccer tradition.

"awesome defense" and a balanced scoring attack.

"The whole team is scoring," Coach Wight said, with the attack coordinated in such a way that everyone is up in the circle at some point in the game.

From the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce

The Board of Directors of the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce met last Thursday, Oct. 12, at 7:30 a.m. at the Casco Bank.

A secretary and treasurer's report was read and accepted. Correspondence was read from Maine Yankee, which would like to send a representative to Bethel to speak to us at a breakfast forum. The board set a date of Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 7:30 a.m. at the Bethel Inn. Breakfast will be available for $5 per person. More details can be obtained by calling the Chamber, at 824-2282.

Correspondence from the town office was also read and it was voted to send the town manager a response.

Committee reports included several ideas on fundraising, including a Chamber golf tournament next summer and a "turkey trot" tentatively to be held on Saturday, Nov. 18, at Gould Academy. Bill Jensen, director, presented a plan to print a coupon book to be sold early this winter and Wende Gray presented a proposal for a first annual Bethel Area Mud Week—to be held during April vacation week, April 1990.

Bill Riley reported on the Eastern States Exposition and its success in showcasing the western mountains and lakes region.

Cathy Newell presented a certificate to the Chamber for writing letters and showing support for the ITV project presently underway at Telstar High School.

Our new Chamber brochure was distributed and all agreed that it is a quality publication.

Dillon Gillies, president, reported on the budget committee's progress. The final recommendations will come forth at the November board meeting.

Jeff Parsons, chairman of the membership committee, reported that he has plans to meet with his group to make some recommendations for a membership drive.

Leon Favreau, legislative chairman, was in Washington, D.C., Oct. 11 meeting with Rep. Olympia Snowe and staff personnel of the offices of senators Mitchell and Cohen. Subjects discussed were Caribou/Speckled, forest and wildlife, the harmful effects of forest preservation and the benefits of proper vegetation management for both the wood products industry and tourism.

Robin Zinchuk, executive director, reported on a Maine Association of Chamber Executives meeting she attended last Thursday in Houlton. Many new contacts were made with Chamber executives from the Province of New Brunswick.

Come-to-Campus Week offers college tours and help with planning

During the week of Oct. 21-29, proclaimed "Come-to-Campus Week" by Governor John R. McKernan Jr., Maine residents are invited to tour the campuses and sample the offerings of 35 colleges and universities across the state.

At Maine Maritime Academy in Castine, high school students considering a career in marine science can attend "Ocean College for a Day" on Oct. 25.

At Bates College in Lewiston, individuals can learn "How to choose and pay for a college education" on Oct. 21.

Adults considering a return to school can attend such programs as "Getting started again" at Eastern Maine Technical College in Bangor on Oct. 23 and 25 and "Is college what I want or could it help me?" at the University of Maine at Farmington on Oct. 23.

Prospective students can "Experience the Maine difference" at the University of Maine at Orono on Oct. 27 and "Share the USM experience" at Portland and Gorham on Oct. 28.

Other special events include art exhibits at the Portland School of Art, the University of Maine at Machias and University College; an invitation to attend classes at College of the Atlantic in Bar Harbor; and a flamenco guitar performance at the University of Maine at Presque Isle.

Many campuses will offer tours, open houses and athletic events.

"Come-to-Campus Week" is sponsored by the Maine Higher Education Council, a consortium of the public and private colleges and universities throughout the state.

Complete scheduling information is available from high school guidance offices, individual colleges and universities and the Maine Higher Education Council, 622-1777.

master William Clough will formally open the weekend with an assembly for all parents and students on Saturday morning, at 8:30 a.m. Parent/teacher conferences will follow until the 11:30 a.m. buffet luncheon.

All Gould sports teams will be in action on home turf Saturday afternoon, followed by receptions for parents at the homes of their students' faculty advisors, 4:30-5:30 p.m.

The Saturday evening program begins with the Silent Auction and Fall Feast, which will run concurrently from 5 to 7:45 p.m. The Live Auction will begin at 8 p.m. According to the event's organizers, the auctioneers—veteran auctioneer and town meeting moderator Bill Cousins and Outboard's Sound's articulate Brit, Jeff Parsons—are bona fide "live wires."

Hundreds of donations will be on the block in both the Live and Silent auctions, including weekends at local and not-so-local vacation spots, handcrafted jewelry and clothing, salmon and blue fishing trips, an IBM computer system, and numerous enticing food items.

The auction proceeds will go towards funding the Gould Academy Four Point Program and the Costa Rica Student Exchange, which are not within the normal operating budget of the school.

Last year's eight-day Four Point Program brought the National Dance Institute's Jacques d'Amboise to the freshmen, sent the sophomores to New Jersey to build homes for Habitat for Humanity, dispatched the junior class into the snow-covered mountains with Outboard, and facilitated the senior class' communication and group interaction skills workshops with the Bethel-based National Training Laboratory (NTL).

The Costa Rica Exchange program allows five students from Costa Rica and five Gould students to visit each others' homes in the spring.

On Sunday, Director of College Placement Bonnie Pooley will host a question-and-answer session on college admissions. A hike or canoe trip with the headmaster will leave at 11:30 a.m.

She also suggested that a Business After Hours/New Members Reception be scheduled for Nov. 14, Tuesday evening. It will be held at the Holiday House on Main Street, Bethel, hosted by new owner Tom McGinniss. All members are welcome to attend between the hours of 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Discussion followed on the Chamber's plans to attend the Boston Ski Show, Nov. 16-19.

The Chamber's Christmas plans will be many this year. The Bethel Christmas tree lighting is scheduled for Friday, Dec. 1, and Santa has been invited. Director Bill Barter will be writing a Letter to the Editor requesting groups, individuals and businesses help in lighting the Christmas tree in white lights this year. The Bethel Fire Department has volunteered their truck to put them up. Executive Director Zinchuk will be checking with Newry, Woodcock and Greenwood on their Christmas plans.

A vote was taken to spend some advertising money in the Boston Globe/Maine Co-op pages this winter.

Meeting was adjourned at 9:40 a.m.

Selectmen

Selectman Peter Haines arrived too late for the vote.

The board voted approval for a liquor license renewal and special amusement permit renewal for the Sudbury Inn. There was only limited dissent from neighbors Bob and Linda Saunders. Selectman Thurston did not vote, since he is a brother of the owner of the inn. The vote was thus 2-0-1.

The board heard discussion on the recently imposed 15-minute parking ban in front of the Sudbury and the no-parking zone further down on Main Street. Inn owner David Thurston said the 15-minute limit is unrealistic and is scaring away people. "It's tough on customers," he said, "[and] had for business."

Neighbor John Greig said she has had second thoughts about the regulation against parking in front of her house, noting that she had given a ticket while parked there. "I was awfully angry," she confessed. "But then I had to laugh. ... Anybody who yelled as loud as I did [for parking restrictions] probably deserved it. [But] all I wanted was to be able to get out of my driveway."

Inn owner Thurston suggested a uniform policy for all parking on Main Street.

Neighbor Bob Saunders suggested no parking at all on Main Street near the Clark Street intersection. "It's the most frightening street in town to come out of," he said. Board Chairman Jodrey tended to agree: "It's probably the most hazardous intersection in town." But Selectman Gilbert had a different view: "I don't see that it's anymore hazardous than coming out of the [Bethel Savings] Bank parking lot."

There was some discussion from the public on whether the new fine structure for parking tickets—$20—might not be too high.

The selectmen said they would reconsider all the issues involved with Main Street parking, and parking violations, at a later date, after receiving a recommendation from the police chief.

Town Clerk Martin Brown announced that repair work on the town's ailing sewer plant was expected to begin next Monday. (He was filling in for the town manager, who was at Naval Reserve training.)

Adult Education

The SAD #44 Adult and Community Education program and the Community College of Maine held an open house last Tuesday in conjunction with the Interactive Television Convocation marking the 25th anniversary of the founding of the University of Maine at Augusta.

Adult and Community Education Director Cathy Newell, who serves as the Telstar ITV Site Coordinator, presented certificates of appreciation to a number of groups, businesses and individuals who were active in supporting Telstar's successful quest to become one of the first 20 high schools in Maine to have ITV courses. Honored were the Bethel Rotary Club, Sunday River Ski Resort, The Bethel Citizen, Gould Academy, the Towns of Bethel and Newry, the Leon L. Bean Mountain Center, the MSAD #44 Board of Directors, the Bethel Area Health Center, State Senator Ed Erwin, the Bethel Historical Society, the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce and the Bethel Inn and Country Club.

Special recognition was given to Mt. Abram Ski Slopes for their involvement with the technical aspect of the project, as host site for the transmitting tower that brings the signal to Telstar and to State Representative Jeff Mills who has worked closely with SAD #44 in interceding with various agencies to move the project along in a timely fashion.

The convocation program included a procession by the Portland Brass Quintet and remarks by University of Maine, Augusta, President George P. Connelley, University Trustees Bennett Katz, James Storer, John Martin, Speaker of the Maine House of Representatives, Charles Pray, President of the Senate, and Robert Woodbury, Chancellor of the University of Maine system.

The major address was given by Governor John McKernan. The program concluded with a ribbon cutting ceremony for the Community College of Maine ITV system.

According to Mrs. Newell, the ITV system will bring over 25 postsecondary courses to the Telstar site each semester, with the majority of programs being community college courses, in addition to a smaller number of baccalaureate, graduate and vocational courses.

The Telstar site has over 50 enrollments this fall with local students enrolled in over 75 percent of available courses. A tentative listing for the second semester has been received and interested students should call the Adult and Community Education office for information on enrollment.

Participation in ITV has brought additional benefits to Telstar. One of these is enhanced library resources. The Telstar library will soon begin the use of MaineCek, the computer-based catalogue system for the Maine State Library. It will be possible to access books through Inter-Library Loan after completing a search of the Maine State Library and participating local library collections.

This resource will provide information services for ITV students, Telstar faculty and students and adults in the area. An additional benefit is a close association with the University of Maine at Farmington's Rumford-Mexico Center, whose staff visits the SAD #44 Adult and Community Education office regularly to meet with current and prospective ITV students.

couple had signed a six-month sales agreement for the Bird Hill Road house. According to the state, on Oct. 22 Mr. Rainey telephoned the realtor with whom the house had been listed and learned that Mr. Coolidge had moved into, or was about to move into, the house.

Mr. Coolidge had been living in the home of his grandmother, in Locke Mills, and had received permission from his mother to move into the house on Bird Hill Road.

Mr. Rainey, who had not been informed of the permission, allegedly became infuriated and made threats against Mr. Coolidge when the realtor told him of the arrangement.

He then left the West Paris home of his brother, Wade (from where he had called the realtor) and drove to Locke Mills, where he allegedly confronted Mr. Coolidge and—after shooting the young man's dog twice—shot him and beat him in the head.

The prosecutor told the jury that Mr. Coolidge had been shot as many as six times, in the hands, chest and back. Mr. Rainey was allegedly seen by a neighbor as he left the house and drove away, turning north on Rte. 26, toward Bethel.

The state claims that within a few minutes of leaving Locke Mills, Mr. Rainey turned up at the Bethel home of his stepdaughter and her boyfriend. There, he allegedly shot and beat them to death.

At least part of the assault took place in the sight of Ms. Shriver's two young daughters, Kim and Nicole, then 11 and 9 years old.

After Mr. Rainey left, the girls ran next door to the home of Game Warden Gerald Brerett. Warden Brerett returned to their house, where he found their mother dead and her boyfriend dying.

The state contends that Mr. Rainey then returned to his brother's home, and, upon entering, stuck out his hand and possible," Chairman of the Board Jane Rich said. "What we have now is totally inadequate. There is not enough space—no room for storage and no privacy." The question will be raised with the Budget Committee at a meeting Oct. 26.

Mike Dubois and Mike Berlamachy complained to the selectmen about damage to their vehicles as a result of work done on the East B Hill Road. The selectmen are going to contact Blue Rock Industries and get back to the complaining parties.

Mr. Berlamachy is among those who have applied for the position of dog officer. A decision will be made on the successful candidate at a later date.

Larry Wyman, of Andover Arms Bed and Breakfast, consulted with the selectmen about a sign the state has recommended for his business at the intersection of Main Street and Route 120. The selectmen are averse to too many signs in the town, so the decision has been postponed.

High Street

By VIVA WHITMAN

Not a very sunny morning as I sit down to type. Rather dark and dreary and they say rain. That means more leaves will come off the trees leaving them less and less pretty. I try to take a walk up the road each day and the change is so remarkable from day to day. It is nowhere near as pretty as it was a few days ago because of the leaves falling from the trees. Don't like to look forward to what comes next but no way to change it.

I was asked to put into the paper the solution that Russell dipped his squash and tomatoes into to help keep them from spoiling so fast. It was 1/2-cup of cloxox to 1-gallon of water. Dr. Waite had told Peggy of it and it does seem to make quite a difference as the cloxox kills the germs on the tomatoes or squash letting them keep better. Tomatoes are dipped then put into a dark place, if possible, to ripen. We saw quite a difference in the way the tomatoes reacted to the solution. Try it and see for yourselves.

Not much left in the garden now. Waiting for Wendall to come get the rest of the beets and there are still a few heads of cauliflowers that the cold weather doesn't seem to bother. Russell had a shredder to use the other day and made the most of it so the garden looks pretty near clean. Still has a few vines he would like to shred but not much left. Of course, Wendall's wife and son Toby were at the Fryeburg Fair this past week with his 4-H cattle to show. Haven't heard how well he did as yet, but he has done well at fairs so far. He has been at so many fairs in the past years he is a veteran at showing beef. He says he doesn't know how to show dairy cattle as well as beef, but he can learn I am sure.

Russell's lovely flowers are now gone, taken by the frost; but we have one lovely light left: He set out some new purple cone plants this year and one of them is beside the mother plant. The mother plant is no more but the new one has a lovely blossom on it and doesn't look as though the frost had hit it at all. Wonders will never cease. How can that one plant still be fresh and good when the rest are all gone, taken by frost? Just one of God's miracles, I guess.

and errands but not much happening other than that. Of course, Russell is up to something all the time and he has helped Peggy make a frame to hold an oil tank as she is thinking of getting oil heat installed in the very near future. It is hard to heat well enough with wood when one is gone at times for all day. Russell went up a couple of times yesterday to keep the fire going while Peggy was gone on her job putting cards up at a couple of stores. He has also decided to fix the portico out front and extend it some to make the snow land farther from the steps. He finished his job yesterday, all but putting on more metal roofing, which he does not have yet.

Peggy and Russell went dancing at Mechanic Falls on Friday night at the Nickelodeon with friends. Peggy went dancing at West Paris Saturday night but Russell declined. Says one night at a time is enough for him. As usual, I stayed at home and kept myself out of mischief by watching TV and knitting on a sweater I am in the process of making.

Went to the doctor's on Monday even if it was a holiday. Unless it is a more important holiday than that, the doctors at North Bridgton are usually in, and they were Monday.

Wynona had brought, or I should have said Michael brought, the girls up on Sunday to stay overnight and most of the day Monday while Wynona went to help a friend split wood to put in for the winter. Don and Ida have given them a lot of garden produce so Nonie thought it only fair that she help them to repay them for the goodies. She was some tired when she got here to pick up the girls on Monday afternoon. She had stayed at Don and Ida's home overnight and hadn't gotten much sleep. She said their dog kept pacing back and forth and kept her awake.

Yesterday was a busy day for us. We had found Sunday that we had water coming in somewhere but couldn't find the right spot, so Monday morning we had called Oxford Homes to see if there was someone who could come to help us get at the water pipes as we thought one had broken or something. We had also ordered a new oil barrel and that was to be changed yesterday, so Colman's came first thing to get that done. A short time after they had left, the other fellows came to see about our water trouble. Guess what, it was the water heater that had sprung a leak and run under the floors to make the mess we had found. The guys had to go back and get a new water heater and install it for us. It never rains but it pours. Peggy was going to use the smaller tank we were talking out but it was not as good as we had thought so she will have to get something else to be sure everything is okay; there is no use starting out with something no good.

Results of the Oct. 8 scramble, held at the Bethel Inn Country Club, were as follows:

66, Bob Myers, Charlie Keoskie, Connie Thurston and Tom Hughes; 69, tie, Barry Bodwell, Dave Denison, John Topley and Amy Farrar and Phil Rolfe, Bren Matthews, Laurence Herst and Paula Hughes.

Don't forget the flea market sale at West Paris Grange Hall Nov. 7 or the food sale to take place at the same time. There will be a dance at the hall that same night so it will be a busy day for West Paris Grangers that work at these times. There are always dance prizes and homemade pies, so come and enjoy the dance after coming to buy food or some other goodies during the day. Tables are available for anyone wanting to sell items. Just call Mary, at 847-2147.

Hope your elbows feel better than mine this dreary day. Take care and have a good week ahead. Get ready for what is to come as the falling leaves predict. I don't like what comes next but no way to change it, so will have to take what comes like everyone else. So long.

Oct. 13 and the weather is beautiful. The sky is a beautiful shade of blue and still just enough trees left with their fall dress to make a beautiful picture. The rains of Wednesday did, however, take off some of the leaves and a lot of the other leaves have begun to fall.

Last Friday was the beginning of a long weekend. Early Saturday Frank left for Dick Chapman's, Harrison, and they were leaving for Benedit for the weekend.

Soon after, Jim Gibson and family stopped by to leave Heather to stay with Grandma and Uncle Frankie. After dinner, Wilfred came to put up the gutters Frank had bought to put up over a year ago, so I was the go-fer.

Sunny morning Frankie brought Theresa up. The two cousins had a good time together as they don't get together that often. Jim and Sue picked up Heather early Monday morning. Frankie brought Karen and Sarah Page with him later in the day when he picked up Theresa so the four of them could go out for dinner.

About 3 p.m., our friends Bert and Jean Downer, of Doyle's, Newfoundland, stopped in. We had a nice visit catching up on families while waiting for Frank to get back. In the morning we were able to all visit until Frank went to work. Ira and Kristin Gibson came over as Ira was with us 15 years ago when we got stranded in Newfoundland during a CN strike. Bert and Jean had sent their two sons to a nearby motel to say they had room in their house for three. We were lucky enough to be the three and have been friends since.

We saw two flocks of geese fly over Monday. One can be outdoors and hear the geese calling long before one actually sees the formation. I have heard that others have seen different flocks as they were not seen the same day.

Tuesday I made a quick trip to Gorham, N.H., and picked up Lee Loring on the way so we could visit.

Victor and Judy Coolidge and girls went to the Fryeburg Fair Oct. 7. Ernest and Albert Angevine also went the 7th. Also going the 7th were Bob, Linda, Seth, and Jon Howe to the fair, Matthew Bean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Bean, went the 7th to play in Telstar's band at the parade.

Ryan Seames, son of Debbie Seames, had Keith Chubbourn as a dinner guest Oct. 8 and for the afternoon. Dawn Seames had Sarah Coolidge as an afternoon guest.

Pastor John Clayton is taking Ryan Seames through the Hunters Safety Course at Telstar. I understand Dr. Leonard Shaw is the instructor.

Oct. 1, Vivian Barlow, of East Andover, visited Joyce Stearns for the afternoon.

On Oct. 9, Becky, John and Jen Shaw went to Norway to visit Becky's brother, David Keniston and family. Oct. 7 Jon Shaw went to Dan Remington's, Grover Hill, and Dr. Leonard Shaw, Becky and

State official says seatbelts can save lives

The Bureau of Safety reports that 18 people died on Maine roads in September.

The monthly fatality report indicated all 15 of the people who died in passenger vehicles were not wearing safety belts. This concerns Glenys Lovett, co-chairperson of the Maine Highway Safety Commission, because she believes safety belts save lives. "Virtually every Jen went out for dinner.

Oct. 2, Larry Andrews and Mary Chapman went to the Fryeburg Fair. Mike and Debbie DeJulia and friends, including Debbie's sister Terry Dooen, of Littleton, Mass., went to Woodsman's Day at Fryeburg.

Dick and Grace Douglass went to Fryeburg Fair Oct. 1. Dick took his horses over for the week. Also going on the 1st were Dick and Sue Angevine, Ricky, Terry, Shari, and Tana; Rolfe and Phil Glines went the 3rd.

Janet Riley of East Hartford, Conn., spent a few days with her sister, Althea and Stan Brown. John Sweeney, brother of Janet and Althea, brought Janet up and on the 12th Stan and Althea will take Janet to Portland where she will visit for awhile with her daughter, Pat Wright.

Charles and Ruth Mason had for Saturday night supper their daughter, Terry and Lee Blake, and three daughters. Lee and family spent the night with Lee's mother, Betty Blake. Charles and Ruth Mason, Matthew, Melinda, and Stephen Bishop took a trip Oct. 8 to Vermont for a foliage trip and to visit friends.

Frank and Sid Murphy left Oct. 4 and came back the 8th to Sutherland, Va., for the wedding of Sid's nephew, Bryon Greenberg and Karen. The Murphys started in Sutherland with Sid's brother, Earl Greenberg and family. The wedding took place in Richmond. The reception was held in the mansion of a doctor friend. Sid took the rest of the week off.

On Oct. 6, Dick, Sue, Kristy Angevine had a 4th birthday party for Dusty Angevine. Dusty's great-grandparents, Ernest and Alberta Angevine, great aunt Judy, Vicky and Sarah Coolidge, Terry, Uncle Rick and Uncle Tim Angevine, cousins Craig Angevine, Tara Cordova, aunt Sherry Cardova and brother Sam. He had two cakes, one made by Grammy Sue and one by Mamma Kristy.

On Oct. 10, my sister, Iva Holden of Norway, picked up our sister Marian Tucker at Readfield and brought her to visit.

If you have a friend worth loving, love him, yes, and let him know that you love him, one life's evening tinge his brow with sunset flow, why should good words ne'er be said of a friend till he is dead?

Telstar students gain confidence in themselves by going into the outdoors

The Outdoor Skills Leadership Challenge (OSLC) course at Telstar is a very unique and challenging one. The students involved in the course are finding it a very rewarding experience. The course is designed to motivate students in believing in themselves and to push them to their fullest potential.

The course emphasizes leadership and all the elements involved in being a good leader, plus the importance of cooperation and working as a group.

The students recently used some of these skills during an outing at Outward Bound doing the ropes course.

The Outward Bound instructors complimented the students on their show of support and encouragement for their fellow classmates.

Despite the rain and cold weather it didn't put a damper on the group's enthusiasm. Many of the students said the constant rain made it more of a challenge.

The group also went rock climbing at Outward Bound. The students spent the day rappelling and climbing different levels of difficulty.

Carolyn Mills took grandmother Flora Whitten out for breakfast Friday morning.

Mary Thurston took Elizabeth Sennett out to dinner and shopping one day this week.

Alma Hewey spent the day at her apartment on Thursday after being away since May 8. We hope she will be able to come to stay soon.

Anne Fox celebrated a birthday on Oct. 13.

Lorrie and Judy Hall called on Aunt Florence Hall.

Gloria Chamberlain was a weekend guest of her mother, Catherine McGuire. They and other family members surprised Elaine and Francis Gaudet with an anniversary dinner on Sunday.

Our 18th Missions Conference, with Bob and Anna Atwood, Taklequah, Okla., was a time of great blessing to all who attended. The Atwoods have been married for 51 years. They have spent their lives as missionaries throughout the world. They worked with the Indians in parts of South America, where they made Mr. Atwood a life-time honorary member "Chief Eagle Feather". Mrs. Atwood's great musical ability, their love for the Lord, and the spiritual lessons that were taught, music, slides, refreshments, the truth of God's word.

Mr. and Mrs. Atwood were our guest speakers during the worship hour and the Sunday evening service at 7 p.m.

TEN STUDENTS FROM THE BOSTON inner-city area visited Telstar and the Bethel area for four days last week. They were hosted by Telstar's S.E.L.F. group. Among the activities were a field trip to the Hastings dairy farm, in East Bethel, a dance at Telstar, a picnic hike at Graton Notch, and movies and discussion at Sunday River Inn. The Boston youngsters also got a chance to attend some classes at Telstar. The S.E.L.F. group expects to make an exchange visit to Boston to visit their new friends in November.

Runners' Rebel girls take 3rd place at MVC

The Telstar girls' cross-country team finished the regular season at the Mount Valley Conference meet last Saturday at Waterville placing 3rd overall.

The girls finished the season with a 7-3 record.

Rebel runners Kelly Hayes, Terri Apple and Solai Buchanan were named to the conference's second all-star team.

The boys' team failed to enter enough runners to get a score in the meet, however Nathan Mieserocchi was named to the first all-star team.

JUNE AND HAROLD HUTCHINS stand amidst some of the antique and refinished furniture in their new shop, The Birches, on the East Andover Road. (Photo by Barbara Adams)

Andover antique shop offers refinished items

A mother's part-time hobby has turned into a brand new Andover business for Avon dealer June Hutchins, assisted by her husband Harold, a supervisor at Boise Cascade in Rumford. Both are natives of Andover.

The opening of the Birches, an antique and collectible shop on the East Andover Road, has been a big success. It is the only shop of its kind in the town.

"As a pastime I started by picking up a few furniture pieces here and there and refinished them to give to my daughters," June said. "I kept going and soon I had so many, with my husband's encouragement I thought of opening a shop. I learned how to do refinishing at Central Maine Vocational Institute, and my husband does chair caning, so we decided to go into business."

Right now the many items of furniture are attractively displayed in a two-car garage on their property, but the Hutchins are hoping to build a shop sometime in the future.

Lucky recipients of items refinished by June's careful refinishing techniques have been daughters Cathleen Otero, a nurse; and Terry Hutchins, a chef; both of Corpus Christi, Texas; as well as daughter Shelley Hutchins, of Andover, who is a student at the University of Maine in Farmington.

The Birches has a great selection of oak, mahogany, walnut, and pine, including an oak bow front china cabinet, four press back oak chairs, an oak front-load lift-top ice box; several oak rocking chairs; a 2 1/2 oak dresser with mirror; a lady's desk; mahogany, pine, and oak commodes; and many other miscellaneous furniture items.

"We carry several small items which people tend to like when furnishing their homes," June said, "and oak is a particular favorite with the public. One of our oak commodes with a serpentine front has a penciled hand written message on the bottom of the drawer dated 1834, telling how the owner had made two trips to New Hampshire that year and other personal comments. I find that piece particularly interesting."

On opening day June also had kerosene lamps and other decorative antique items displayed around the shop, but shortly after the shop opened, a dealer came and purchased the majority of them; the Hutchins intend to replace them.

The shop is open daily, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. For further information, call 392-2211.

Our sympathy to Dolores and the rest of Bill Williams' family.

Mildred Emery was hospitalized early last week after being hit in the back of the neck by a rock thrown by the lawn mower. Hope she has a speedy recovery. Only counted five bluebirds in the little flock which stopped by last weekend, apparently on its way south.

Nellie Caplan and her daughter Helen, I think, have been spending some time at her place on the hill.

Carlton Rugg moved the fields for me this fall. He did a good job cleaning up all the areas he could get to. Really looks so much better.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Awalt, of Augusta, were supper guests of Mrs. Elmira Doyen last Saturday.

The Bob Folsoms have had a well drilled at their cottage.

There will be a food sale at the IGA store the last Friday of this month to benefit the Albany Improvement Association.

Peter and Diane Parsons, Hebron, Conn., spent three days the first of the week with the Jack Parsons, called here by a death in her family.

Jack and Eleanor rode to Norway Wednesday afternoon. On Friday they called at his sister's, in Rumford Point, but in the meantime she was up here to call on them.

Weston Flint and Winona Verrill visited Mrs. Elmira Doyen last Sunday afternoon. Marjorie and Hugh Awalt with his cousin and wife, from Montana, called there on their way for a drive up through Evans Notch. The foliage has been at its peak this week, though not such bright colors as normally.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hutchins and family are moving into the Jimmy Kimball house at the corner of Crocker Pond Road.

Today Mrs. Elmira Doyen expects her brother-in-law, "Bob" York, and his driver from Vermont to spend the day with her.

Mrs. Christine Kimball will attend the wedding of her granddaughter, Lisa Barker, in South Paris.

How shocking to read of the death of Bill Williams in this morning's paper.

Everyone needs a little pat on the back now and then.

Wednesday would pass for a rainy day. It really poured all the forenoon.

I had a call from Esther Davis in Florida Saturday. They arrived safely by Amtrak. The train did hit the back of a truck that ran in front of the train. No one was hurt. They started out Thursday and arrived in Florida Saturday morning.

Ellsworth Hathaway is working in his sawmill sawing out lumber on the flat below the road.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews took dinner with me Sunday.

I was shocked to see the robberies in Oxford County. It is time to do something besides displaying their wrists. Dope fiends we do not need if that is the case or any other dishonest people.

The Willing Workers met with Olive Davis Thursday night, Oct. 12. More next week on that.

By COLISTA MORGAN

I have experienced many things since I wrote last week. Some were beautiful and one was bad. So I'll tell the bad one first to release some of my anger. On Oct. 6 I went out for lunch and then grocery shopping. Four hours later I returned to find that my house had been broken into and my camera and electric typewriter were missing. These "daylight robbers" showed their strength but they are a "sour note" in our community, with thoughts of just themselves.

Now forget them and think of better things. There is so much beauty everywhere. This is the time that Ruth and I took our last hike together. I never forget her voice repeating that special verse by Stanley F. Bartlett. "There's a whisper in the woodland, there's a murmur in the brake, there's a scarlet gypsy napping, dancing by a mirror lake."

From the hilltop of the farm I could look forth on a landscape divided, as a map might be, into many colors, each with its own domain. I saw the blue of the October pond, the brown of uncut grassland, and everywhere the green of the grassland carpets; the fields where hay was cut in summer, the quiet mood of autumn broods upon the land. The maples thrust out flaming branches and it is warm, still, and bright.

So glowing have been most days that I often forget what the sky has stored away for us of bitter cold and "treasures of the snow." I did see a bit of it on a ride to Andover, Upton and down through Crafton Notch, where there was snow on the ferns and evergreens along the roadside. Looking up at Table Rock in the Notch, I had an urge to climb it once more. Not then, though, for it was wet, slippery and encased in fog. But all considered—it was a beautiful ride.

I also had another lovely ride back to the hills where for people go. The view was spectacular with its numerous mountain ranges, which had been visited by the master artist. The far horizons had a peaceful haze of smoky blue. The thin clouds were as still as if they had been painted on the sky. We saw, as we stared about, both gray and brown trees together and white birches rising among them. Between us and the sun were stone walls stretching on and on. In a few hours the landscape had turned one of the great corners of the year.

As we turned to go, I felt a strange warmth inside—the very perfection of this autumn day leading down the steps of time.

These are the things we dream of, when autumn days have come. These memories stay within our hearts in the glow of the setting sun.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Pulsifer had their son, Melvin, and their daughter, Sharon, visiting them.

Two large flocks of geese flew over Monday and one did a good job here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Widberg, of Canton, Mass., visited me Thursday morning. They left home at 5 a.m. From here they visited friends in Bethel then drove home.

The duck hunters are busy since the season opened.

Jean Millett stopped for a visit on Thursday afternoon. It was nice seeing her. It seems so long ago that her children sat in my school room. Time

Surplus food available Thursday in Rumford

There will be a distribution of U.S. Department of Agriculture surplus food

Thursday (Thursday) at the Rumford armory, 9-11 a.m. for elderly and handicapped, and 11 a.m.-3 p.m. for all other eligible persons.

Those households that receive fuel assistance, elderly tax and rent refunds, AFDC, food stamps, elderly drug card, Medicaid or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) are eligible to receive the surplus foods.

A typical family with three or four members will receive three pounds of butter, four pounds of beans, 56 ounces of pork, 24 ounces of powdered eggs, four pounds of peanut butter, 10 pounds of cornmeal and 10 pounds of flour.

Does speed by.

David and Mary Holt have called a few times. Mary gathered across while visiting me. She put them in a flat container on a shelf by my tree at the end of my house for my gray squirrel. Sure enough, the squirrel came and ate a couple of nuts then carried several to the ground where she dug a hole and covered them. Doesn't she know that the snow will also cover them?

The men who trim the trees on the electric line did a good job here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Widberg, of Canton, Mass., visited me Thursday morning. They left home at 5 a.m. From here they visited friends in Bethel then drove home.

Legion hosts delegates to Girls and Boys State

The Mundi-Allen American Legion Post #61 and Auxiliary Unit held their annual Girls and Boys State supper, Tuesday evening, Oct. 10.

Approximately 40 officers, members and guests attended the potted beef and noodle supper.

This year's delegates gave a short talk on their experiences at Girls and Boys State. Those present were Stephanie Crockett and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Crockett; Carrie Olson and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil Olson; Aaron Conant and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Conant; Teague Berry and father David Berry; Patrick Feeney and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Feeney. David Foster was unable to attend but sent a nice letter about Boys State and "thank you" for sending him.

Officers present were M. Jo Miete, Department president of the Auxiliary from Wiscasset; Ann Kegal, District #2 president and her husband John and his mother, Mrs. Kegal, from Rumford Point.

West Bethel

By CONSTANCE BROADBENT

Dear Nancy and Dick,
Here in West Bethel, when people drop by for a brief visit with no intention of staying long, they call it a "dooryard visit" (as in days of old when folks dilled in dooryards as they made their way to town.) Or when they stop by for a chat in the kitchen, with every intention of moving on soon, they call it a "bonnet visit" (another colloquialism from days of old, when the visit was too brief to bother removing one's hat or bonnet). So what do you suppose we should call the visit that we made to you last week, when, as we neared your town on the interstate, we impulsively decided to hop off the highway and look you up?

We took a chance that you'd be home, that you weren't busy, and that you'd welcome us after our three- or was it four-year absence. And we knew that if all of the above were true, then you'd also insist on feeding us. Let's call it a "calamari call," (symbolic of our own days of old, Nance, when your father invited me, the "Irish girl," Friday after Friday, to dine at his Italian table and coaxed me each week to "Try the calamari!")

So we made the "calamari call." You were at home, you welcomed us with warm hugs, and you fed us pasta and pie. We had a wonderful reunion with your very grown-up daughter, Susan, and with Donna and Dick Reynolds, our only chain-smoking friends left on the planet. (Cough, choke, sputter, sputter!) The visit was really the frosting on a fortnight of events that took us all over New England. And because you took us on a tour of your town, I was able to fill a bag with Norway Spruce cones for my wreath making...such serendipity.

When we got back to Bethel, there was a call from Donald's sister, Ann Jellis. She and her husband Winsor wanted to see the mountain foliage. So we shoved the suitcases under the bed, stuffed the laundry in the washer, dusted the sadly neglected tables with our fingers, and welcomed them at lunchtime with smiles and sandwiches.

We roamed in the rain the first day...stopping at antique barns and bookstores, giddy-crazy shops, and a great candle store (owned by the daughter of our friend Doris Brown), where we browsed and bought, and actually had to drag Donald away. We stopped at a place called The Chef's Table for lunch, and it was there that I suffered a near fatal blow to my sense of self.

The waitress, full of good intentions, brought the check, and announced innocently, "I took it for granted that you were all senior citizens, so I figured the 'discount into the total'..." Holy Mother Earth!!!

Now remember, I'm the one who still thinks of herself as the "Calamari Kid," and I'm the one who went back to college in her 30s and slipped into classes looking like the others. So I tend to forget that I've graduated from my mid-life crisis, and that in the company of 60-ish, gray-haired men (thanks, Win), I'm assumed to be one of the discount dollsies.

Don't get me wrong. Some (actually most) of my best friends are senior citizens. And I'm not trailing them by many years, especially by that restaurant's standards, where the cutoff (I quickly regained my composure and inquired politely) is age 60. It was just that no one had ever included me in the category before, and it was a shock to my system.

Well, I survived the trauma, soothed my nerves with a cup of non-fat chocolate yogurt, and managed to carry on. The next day the sun came out, and we rode through Grafton Notch to "ooh" and "aah" at the patchwork panorama. A picnic by a waterfall, a few more spruce cones, and I was my old (oops) self once again.

Newry

By AMY HANSCOM

Vada and Verne Glover of Hollis Center were at the Hanscom Homestead in Newry over the weekend and Verne's sister, Mary Thurston of Andover, visited them on Saturday. Ruth and Arthur Cummings visited the Glovers on Monday. The Glovers visited Roger and Amy Hanscom at the Cozy Inn Nursing home on Saturday and Sunday and the Glovers also visited their son David and family of Rumford over the weekend.

June Swan, Gilbert Seeley and Louise Tetley visited Roger and Amy on Monday. The Ladies Circle of Newry Church gave Amy a lap robe.

Monday night Amy Hanscom had an attack and was taken to Rumford Hospital and is in intensive care. Hope she will be back at the nursing home soon.

Rodney Hanscom's sermon last Sunday was titled "Christian Obligation." He took his verses from Deuteronomy 12:23, Psalms 78:1-8 and Matthew 1:6. Pastor Hanscom also officiated at a baptismal service at the Newry Church on Sunday.

Reverend Norman and Marion Scruton, of Washington State, were overnight guests of Sylvia and Bill Wright. The members of the Newry Community Church wish to thank Jeff Parsons and his Outward Bound instructors and the young people that were attending the Outward Bound School on Sunday River for the good painting job on our church.

Also thanks to Keith Durgin for his staging equipment he loaned to us for a week. Many thanks go to the people who gave money to purchase the paint. Sue and Owen Wright had as guests over the weekend Tom and Edith Wright of Chelmsford, Mass. Bill and Gail Brooke and Sammy and Katie, of North Whitefield, Randy and Audrey Brooke and family, of Newry, Scott Wright of New York, and friend Lisa, of Brunswick.

The Newry Mothers Club met Monday.

Despite the blow to my biological clock, I walked with more determination than ever the next morning, marching down the road to my "power walking" music, anxious to improve the spring in my step. I passed not one, but a flock of bluebirds, lined up on the overhead cable, playing "Aerial Chairs" as I approached. They were the only curiosity of the day, if you don't count the horses and cows who check my progress each morning. I decided that we in West Bethel must live "over the rainbow," since the bluebirds fly in such profusion.

I can only tell you about the flora and fauna this week, folks, since we were away more than at home. Hopefully the neighbors will fill me in (wouldn't it be nice to hear from someone who read me, but as yet haven't shared their "what's-new" with me).

Thanks again, you two. It was a wonderful visit and a real testament to the durability of friendship. Please pack some calamari in ice and head this way soon. Just don't come on a football weekend; I couldn't take listening to the two old gridsters yelling at the screen and reliving their pre-artificial-turf adventures.

Thank Susan for making us feel so welcome. Hugs to mother Josephine and brother Joe when you see them. I've got to run...I'm off to Linda's to have my hair dyed young!

Love, C.B.

day, Oct. 9, at the municipal building, with 12 members present. Cindy Morsey, president, opened the meeting with a prayer by Gil Seeley.

Secretary Peg Wright read the notes of the last meeting and June Swan, treasurer, brought the finances up to date.

Sunshine Lady Olive Anderson reported on sending cards to the ill and shut-ins. The mystery prize was won by Betsy Clark. The club will have a food sale in November. The date will be announced later when arrangements will be made. We hope to get food donations from members and from townspeople. It would be greatly appreciated as the money will be going toward a new revised cook book.

Getting balloons for the Halloween party of Oct. 22 for the children was discussed. Small items were collected at the meeting for prizes for the children. We hope the llama will be there. Snack food would be appreciated for the party.

Meeting was adjourned and an auction was held with our auctioneer Betsy Clark doing a good job as usual. Refreshments were served by Louise Tetley, Bea Lowell and Karlene Bachelder.

Next meeting will be Nov. 13, with snack committee Betsy Clark, Nancy Wright and Olive Anderson.

On Sept. 24 there was a surprise 63rd birthday breakfast for "Hill" Berry at the Bears Den Restaurant. Those attending were: Roger and Bea Howard, Merrill Bittner, Scott, Rita, Jason and Mandy Berry, Marjorie, Tim, Erin and Wade Osgood, David and Bozzy Berry, Denise, Lassy, Shawna and Heather Roderick.

Craft fair seeks artisans to display and sell wares

The 4th Annual Bethel Elementary School Craft Fair is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 28, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at Teletar Regional High School.

The event invites area artisans to exhibit and sell their craft items. The funds earned from this fair benefit the children of the elementary schools by supplementing the budget for such items as field trips, computer wares, and additional classroom supplies.

The children will help with the fair by operating special craft tables, designing and distributing posters, and creating craft items for sale.

A registration fee of $20 will reserve a space, including one table and chair per artisan.

To register for a table and chairs send $20 and your name, address and

Locke Mills

By LORRAINE MILLS

The new minister, Genavieve Heywood, will be holding her first service at the Locke Mills Union Church on Oct. 22.

The Greenwood Historical Society held its annual election of officers at its October meeting. Melvin Kimball presided over the meeting. There were 13 present. Those elected for the coming year were Hugh Swan, president; Lee Mills, treasurer; Mary Mills, correspondence secretary; trustees: Margaret Mills, Barbara Dunham, Melvin Kimball, Vera Cross served refreshments. It was reported that George Haines had done some more work in the building. The Society also has copies available of the recent newsletter.

Dot Chopping, East Dirfield, visited Lorraine Mills Thursday afternoon. Vera Cross and Charlotte Cole had dinner with Lillian and Wilfred Noyes in Wilton Friday. On Wednesday, they went to Cuz Inn and Charlotte entertained with music. They had lunch at DJ's. On Tuesday, Charlotte entertained at Ledgewood. Helen Chase went with her that time.

Lee and Mary Mills were visited by cousins from Portland, Lloyd Sykes, Bertha Dee and Vivian Dailey, Tuesday. And on Thursday, the Millses visited her sister, Vi Churchill and nephew Leland Farr (who recently had to have surgery on the stump of the first leg he lost) and cousin Kathleen Niemi, at the Market Square Health Facility, in South Paris, and Cecile Winslow, another sister, who lives at the Buck Hill Apartments, in South Paris.

Well, the doctor tells me I can get around a bit more now. I wish I could make my body believe it. After so long in bed, it says no, no, no way. One day I may be able to do a bit and the next day my head whirls every time I move—very provoking.

Relief of Sinus Headache

Recent statistics indicate that every week about fifteen percent of the American population experiences at least one headache. Americans are reported to go to the doctor 50 million times a year and spend approximately $400 million on nonprescription medicines for the relief of headaches. Muscle tension, sinus congestion, mental depression, and blood vessel dilation are some of the more common causes of headaches.

Sinus headaches result from congested or clogged sinus passages in the head. The sinuses are cavities lined with mucous membranes within the facial bones. Sinus headache relief may be achieved with nonprescription pain relievers, nasal decongestants, and antihistamines. Nasal decongestants may help drain congested passages in the sinuses and reduce pressure in the sinus cavities. Because sinus problems are sometimes also associated with allergies, antihistamine-type medicines may help relieve sinus headaches.

Application of warm, moist heat over the sinuses may aid drainage and hasten the relief of headache pain. A damp towel may be used. Special heat pads are available for this purpose, but may be difficult to find.

WEST BETHEL Children's Center

The children have been staying busy with a lot of exciting happenings. Sonny Blake made a visit to us with one of the school buses. He talked with us about bus safety and rules. Then he took us on a bus ride to the bus garage where we got to look at the inside of the bus garage. The children enjoyed their tour. Thanks again, Sonny.

We also had a beautiful day for our field trip last Thursday to Stearns' apple orchard. Mr. Wing passed out bags for apples and after the walk through the or-

This town, along with every other around here, I suspect, was shocked at the death of Bill Williams. Our sincerest sympathy goes to his family. Only time will show the long-range impact of his loss to the community and the Sheriff's Department. He will be missed.

Almost forgot, John and I celebrated our 35th wedding anniversary on Oct. 9. We had planned to take the week and go on a trip. I should know better than to plan for any birthday or anniversary. In our family it is a standing joke that nothing ever goes as planned. But there have been a couple times the changes in plans have been for causes that were not funny, and this was one of them.

Police Chief Brian Stowell took some time out of his busy day to come out to the center and talk with the children about what police officers do. The children also were taken outside to see the police car and listen to the siren and watch the lights flash. Thank you, Chief Stowell—you were great.

The children have been busy making apple trees, apple prints, finger painting and playing hard in all our busy areas.

Our pretty little star-of-the-week is four-year-old Jennifer Taylor, daughter of Brenda and Ople Taylor, of Bethel. Thank you, Wendy and Lisa, for your time in the classroom. Parents are always welcome.

New state program offers 7 percent mortgages to first-time homebuyers

A new $35 million Maine State Housing Authority program will enable an estimated 600 Maine low and moderate income families to purchase their first homes, MSHA Director Elizabeth H. Mitchell announced last week.

The program, which began this week at more than 25 participating lenders throughout Maine, offers the lowest interest rates the MSHA has been able to provide since 1986, Mrs. Mitchell said. Interest rates as low as 7 percent are available to eligible first-time homebuyers with annual incomes of $22,000 or less. First-time homebuyers with families of three or more may have incomes up to $34,500 ($37,000 in York County and parts of Cumberland County) and be eligible for the regular program interest rate of 8.25 percent. One- and two-person families must meet lower income limits.

"Our new round of financing will make it possible for several hundred more working Maine families to become homeowners for the first time," Mrs. Mitchell said. "At a time when home ownership is becoming more and more difficult for many working families, and conventional interest rates remain high, we think the low interest rates and other benefits our program provides are extremely important for Maine."

She said the new $35 million program includes several benefits that make the program even more attractive. These include:

- Higher income limits for families of three or more;
- MSHA closing cost assistance, which helps home buyers not eligible for Veterans and Federal Mortgage Insurance to finance part of the closing costs associated with the purchase of a home;
- Regional home price and income limits that better reflect the cost of homes in southern regions of Maine.

In addition, the program provides a fixed rate so that mortgage payments will not increase during the life of the loan. The mortgage repayment period is a long 30 years, which lowers monthly costs. A special "purchase plus improvement" feature allows eligible home-

M.M.F.R. Douglas V. Bickford visited his grandmother Louvie Coffin one day last week. Douglas is in the U.S. Navy assigned to the aircraft carrier Forrester.

Carlton P. Berry, of Fairport, N.Y., visited over the past weekend with his mother, Madeline Jacobs, and aunt Louvie Coffin.

buyers to borrow additional funds at the same rate and repayment term as the mortgage to make necessary repairs to "handyman specials."

The first-time homebuyer loans can be used to buy moderately priced new or existing single-family homes, including mobile homes. They also can be used to purchase owner-occupied duplexes, three-unit and four-unit homes.

Mrs. Mitchell said persons interested in using the MSHA programs should first carefully look for a home and obtain a purchase and sale agreement on a property. Then they would apply for an MSHA loan at one of the 25 participating lenders located throughout Maine.

Persons interested in learning more about the program should contact the agency's Homeownership Division at 1-828-HOME for more information, including a list of participating lenders and program brochures.

The $35 million in new money brings the total amount of low interest rate home purchase loans the MSHA has provided this year to $75 million, enabling an estimated 1,500 Maine families to become home owners for the first time.

The MSHA low interest rate loans are financed primarily through the sale of the agency's tax-exempt revenue bonds. The bonds, which are not debts of the state, are repaid by the mortgages made with the bond proceeds. The MSHA uses funds from the agency's HOME fund, revenue generated through a portion of the state Real Estate Transfer Tax, to lower interest rates below the rate that could be achieved solely through tax-exempt bond financing.

The E.B. Forbes-Goodwill Group supper on Tuesday night was well attended with 32 present. The Forward Fellowship assisted and other church members were also in attendance. Denis Corrin, of Bryant Pond, presented the program on the Bridge Project linking Alaska and Russia.

On Monday, Oct. 23, Forward Fellowship will meet at the home of Peggy Perham for a potluck supper followed by the business meeting. Plans will be made for the annual Fall Sale and Chicken Pie Supper.

On Wednesday, Oct. 25, there will be a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. at Goodwill Hall, to which all are invited. There will be music by Rev. Don Rollins and Mike Gallibus.

The Historical Society will be putting on a Hunter's Breakfast for the public on Saturday morning, Oct. 28. More on that later.

FIRST AID COURSE

Due to a large response, the Health Education Department at Stephens Memorial Hospital has scheduled an additional Standard First Aid course on Thursday, Oct. 26, and Thursday, Nov. 2. Classes will be held 5-9 p.m.

This course integrates adult cardiopulmonary resuscitation with other first aid topics, including: bleeding and shock, fractures, sprains and strains, diabetic emergencies, poisoning and many more. Participants will learn to respond to emergency situations with confidence in their ability to perform the necessary skills.

The fee for the course is $35 and pre-registration is required. For more information and registration call the Health Education Department, at 743-5933.

Pond Reflections

by Colista Morgan

If you like Maine you'll love this collection of 52 essays by Colista Morgan, the Greenwood City correspondent of The Bethel Citizen

The essays cover every season of the year, as seen in the hills and on the rivers and ponds of Greenwood. It's all here — the animals, the earth & trees, the weather, the sky changes — all presented in Mrs. Morgan's graceful and informal style.

The book is available at: Books 'n' Things, Downtown Bookstore, Prim's, Maine Line Products, Groan & McGurn, local historical societies, and at The Citizen office, or you can order your copy by sending in this coupon.

Please send me _____ copy (copies) of Colista Morgan's "Pond Reflections" at $8.95 per copy. (Please add $1.60 for shipping. Maine residents add .45 sales tax.)

THIS WEEK AT THE Moses Mason House

Nearly 87 percent of the 1989 Endowment Campaign goal of the Bethel Historical Society has been reached to date, with contributions from 284 donors. Among the most recent contributors were: Bernard Mohr and Karen Brown-Mohr, Portland; Stephen Verrill, Concord, Mass., in memory of his parents, Amy and Floyd Verrill; Elizabeth Lord, Bethel; Dexter and Janet Stowell, Bethel; Florence Hathaway, Needham, Mass.; Daisy LeClair, Bethel, in memory of Syl LeClair; Donald Christie, Foughtsleippe, N.Y., in memory of Edward Quinn; Frank and Janet Vogt, Bethel, in memory of Helen Berry; Willard and Sylvia Wight, Newry, in memory of Carrie Wight; Richard Raso, Bethel, in memory of Jim Alger; Earlton and Mary Keniston, Bethel, in memory of Sally Twitchell; Marvin and Tineke Ouwinga, Bethel, in memory of Helen Berry; Helen Philbrook, Augusta. Also, Richard and Catherine Bush, Belmont, Mass.; John and Margaret King, Lakeland, Fla., in memory of Harry and Sarah King; Faye Hastings, West Paris, in memory of Edward Hastings; Royden and Alice Keady, Gocham; Don and Peggy Tobin, Bandera, Texas, in memory of Florence Twitchell. Much appreciation is expressed to all of the above for their generosity.

Several new members have joined the Bethel Historical Society. They are James and Nanda Weeks, Syracuse, N.Y.; Pamela Heydon, Wilton, Conn.; Carolyn Nygren, Medford, Mass.; and Caroline Brown, Colorado Springs, Colo. A warm welcome is extended to these new Society supporters.

Recently the Society received a number of documents relating to the Twitchell family, of Bethel, from a descendant in Oregon. Among the documents is an inventory of the estate of Eleazer Twitchell (1744-1819). Twitchell was one of Bethel's earliest settlers and barely escaped from being taken prisoner at the time of the famous Indian raid on Aug. 3, 1781. He owned much of what is today Bethel Hill and donated the Common to the Town.

Among the items included in his estate (and their value at the time) were: 200 acres of land ($500), one building used for a store ($50), 1 mare ($45), 1 yearling colt ($25), 1 pair of three-year-old steers ($38), 5 sheep ($8.50), 1 two-year-old heifer ($12), 2 swine ($12), 1 pair of cart wheels, 1 old sleigh ($8.50), 1 ox ($1), 2 old scythes ($50), 1 sickle ($33), 1 staple ring ($50), 1 pitchfork ($25), 2 sets of plough irons ($2.75), styldrags ($7.50), old chains ($2.75), 1 wheelbarrow ($1.50), 1 cross saw ($2), 2 old chisels ($3.41), 1 wooden clock and case ($10), 1 four-foot table ($2), 1 table ($1.50), 1 light stand ($50), 1 old chair ($3), 2 feather beds ($18), 3 quilts ($7.50), 3 bed blankets ($3.25), 7 sheets ($4), 8 pillow cases ($8), 2 bedsteads and cords ($1.75), 1 two-pail pot ($1.50), 1 dish kettle ($50), 1 wash tub ($25), 1 old desk ($3.50), old chest of drawers ($3.50), old crockery ($1.67), 2 cream pots ($30), old pewter ($1.50), 3 spoons ($30), tin wares ($2.25), knives and forks ($50), shovel and tongs and andirons ($2), 1 share in the Bethel Social Library ($1.50), 2 wheels ($3), 1 pair of saddlebags ($1.50), wearing apparel ($14). The total value of the estate was $606.41. Appraisers for the estate were Timothy Carter, Moses Mason and Barbour Bartlett.

Probate inventories are very useful to historians and others concerned with documenting the past, since they are often indicative of how individuals lived. A number of insights into this form of research is found in a recent gift to the Society, a copy of "Early American Probate Inventories," from the annual proceedings of the 1987 Dublin Seminar for New England Folklife, edited by Peter Benes and published by Boston University.

The latest issue of the Society's quarterly, "The Bethel Courier," is now at the printers. Anyone wishing a complimentary issue should call the Society at 824-2908, or write to P.O. Box 12, Bethel 04217.

LOOKING BACKWARD

10 Years Ago: Three of four new trustees recently appointed to the Gould Academy Board of Trustees were Gould alumni: Richard Sprague '46, Rosalind Liston '48 and Louis Wood '48. The Bethel Senior Citizens met at the Odd Fellows Hall, with 88 present. The Bethel Historical Society hosted Maine Citizens for Historic Preservation at the Dr. Moses Mason House. Society Director Stanley Howe was re-elected to a second three-year term as a trustee of Maine Citizens.

Births: Corey W. Davis.

Deaths: Lynwood A. Wheeler.

20 Years Ago: A snow storm of more than three inches hit Bethel, causing hazardous driving conditions. The Bethel PTA held its first meeting, with over 40 members present. Roger Dock, of Bethel, graduated second in a class of 40 from Steward A. School, in San Diego, Calif., and was recommended for duty at the White House, where he is currently serving. A group of outstanding science students at Teller Regional High School went to the Museum of Science, in Boston, where they were guests of the 5th Annual Science Frontiers lecture series.

Births: Tracy W. Bennett, Michael J. Thompson, Michelle L. Johnson.

Marriages: John P. Cleveland and Nancy E. Perham.

Deaths: Eva M. Bean.

30 Years Ago: The Bethel PTA held its first meeting at Gould Academy's Bingham Gymnasium, with 83 present. About 150 persons attended the 25th wedding anniversary party honoring Bill and Martha Von Zintl at the Top Hat Pavilion. Over 500 attended the annual achievement day at South Paris High School gymnasium where blue ribbon winners were announced by Rachel McKay, county 4-H project leader.

Sunday River hires communications person

Mart Mayne has been appointed director of communications for Sunday River Skiway Corporation, it was announced last week by Bill Jensen, director of marketing.

"Mart brings a wealth of diverse public relations, communication and promotional experience to Sunday River," Mr. Jensen said. "Mart's skills will serve the best interests of our broadening market well."

Before joining Sunday River, Ms. Mayne most recently served as conference coordinator at the University of Southern Maine, in Portland. Prior to her move to Portland, she was a corporate projects coordinator for Gannett Co., Inc., in Arlington, Va., where she coordinated news-related promotions for Gannett's newspapers, radio and television stations, including "USA Today."

Ms. Mayne has a M.S. degree in Counseling/Human Resources from the University of Bridgeport, in Bridgeport, Conn., and a B.A. degree in Psychology and Sociology from Middlebury College, in Middlebury, Vt.

Deaths: Mark E. Arsenault, Minnie E. Woodward, Gladys Bean.

40 Years Ago: The Bethel School Survey Committee made its report at a PTA meeting recommending that the primary grades be kept in rural buildings with 7th and 8th-graders coming to the village. At least four more classrooms were needed in the village. A cement dam was built at the outlet of the pond at Greenwood City. The work was supervised by a committee of the Mt. Abram Fish & Game Association: Leo Cole, of Greenwood, Raymond Chapman, of West Paris, and Lester Hathaway of Bryant Pond. The Bethel Ski and Outing Club elected officers: president, Murray Thurston; vice president, Addison Saunders; secretary, Wilbur Myers; treasurer, George Ledford.

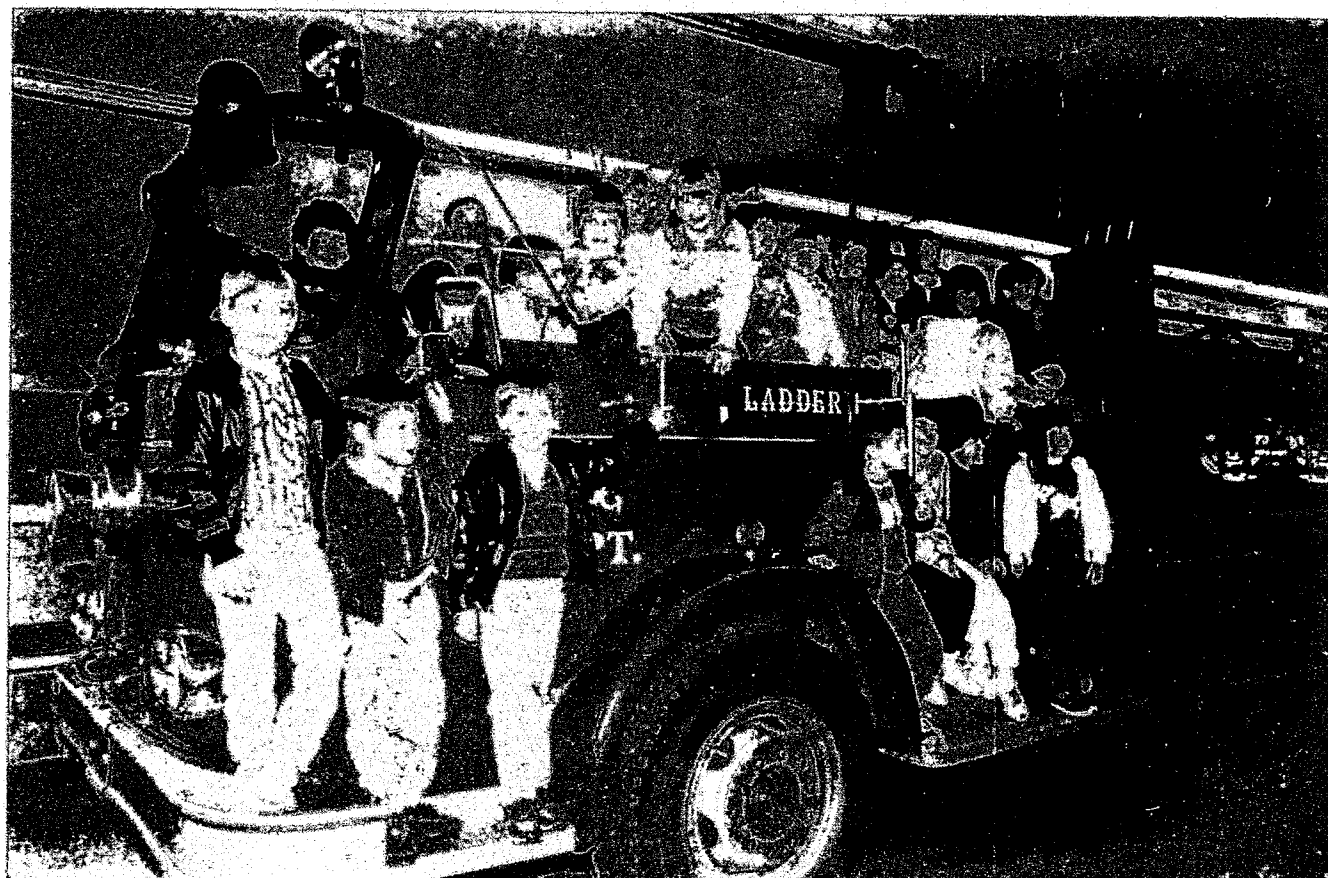

Births: Larry J. Smith.

Marriages: Charles D. Merrill and Caroline Olson.

Deaths: Sidney M. Chapman, Alice A. Brown, Lilla Skilling.

50 Years Ago: John Harris was injured in an automobile accident. Phillip Burns, of South Paris purchased the L.W. Ramsell Company store. Snow fell on Bethel for the first time in the fall on Oct. 17. A slight earthquake was felt in the Bethel area. Bear River Grange held its regular meeting, with 27 members and conferred the 3rd and 4th degrees on two candidates.

Marriages: Charles Losier and Frances Kennedy.

What year were you in 1st Grade? You may have been lucky enough to have had Caroline Gould that year. She began her teaching career in Bethel in 1962 after teaching Grades 2, 3, 4 and 5 in her home state of Rhode Island. She moved to Maine as the bride of Malcolm Gould and together they make their home on Chandler Hill. Susan was born in 1967 and today is a 5th-year student at USM, majoring in psychology.

Caroline has always been involved in school and community activities. She sells tickets at all the basketball games in the winter as a member of the Boosters Club. In addition, Caroline is the Bethel Bisbee representative to the Telstar Educators Association, a member of the District Academic Standards Steering committee and serves on the Science Curriculum Study Committee.

Over the years Caroline has shared with students and faculty alike her love for teaching and her great gift of bringing a thirst for knowledge to the very young. Thank you, Caroline, for 27 years of service to the children of Bethel.

Ski sale will help defray costs for local skiers

Skiers who purchase or sell equipment at the annual Bethel Outing Club Ski Sale at Gould Academy will be supporting elementary school skiers at Crescent Park and Bethel Bisbee schools, as well as Telstar High School and Gould Academy cross-country skiers, for their training and competition at the local and national levels.

The purpose of the Bethel Outing Club is to promote nordic ski programs and year-round family-oriented outings. The Outing Club has funded the purchase of skis for the elementary school program in Bethel, sponsored canoeing and hiking trips, and held training camps for high school skiers from around the region.

The Outing Club helped to support a group of Gould and Telstar skiers who travelled to Labrador City, Newfoundland, last Thanksgiving for a 10-day training camp with their coaches Bob Remington, Dick Taylor, Bonnie Pooley and Kirk Slegel. Other individuals have received funding for travel to the New England High School Championships, the Junior National Cross-Country Championships and the National Biathlon Championships.

The Ninth Annual Bethel Outing Club Ski Sale will take place Friday, Oct. 27, 6:30-9:30 a.m., and Saturday, Oct. 28, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., in the Gould Academy Fieldhouse. People wishing to sell equipment may bring items during the sale hours to be tagged and placed on the floor. For more information, call 824-2131.

Contrary to what you might gather from watching the news and seeing children interviewed about their lack of knowledge regarding Columbus Day, most elementary teachers do teach the significance of Columbus and Columbus Day.

Besides learning about Columbus, our 1st-graders are learning about fire safety, as this past week was Fire Prevention Week. They made booklets entitled "Sound the Alarm" and stressed practicing fire drills at home, as well as at school. Mrs. Loper and her 1st-graders wish to thank Mrs. Mary Wilcox who helped prepare their Macintosh appliances last week. The children had to prepare everything, beginning with washing and cutting up the apples. The Kindergarten was then invited to an apple-pie party.

The 2nd-graders are becoming acquainted with the computer. They are learning the fundamental care and use of the computer. Their giant red mascot, Clifford, is currently retired and an inquisitive George is now the mascot that everyone wants a chance to take home for a visit. Walter Inman is the student-of-the-week. Mrs. Perlman is currently reading a book to her class from the "Box Car Children" series. She has just finished reading a selection from the "Box Car Children" series.

The 3rd-graders are continuing with their study of the skeletal and muscular systems. I saw some interesting skeletons going home on the bus today. They are continuing their social studies work on community jobs and are combining a bit of math by making tables and graphs about what they have discovered.

The 4th-graders are combining science with their Maine studies. They are identifying leaves and trees, hardwood and softwood. Samples are being brought from home and a trip around the schoolyard will provide more. Mr. Litchfield reported that the science convention that he attended last week was well worth the trip. The keynote speaker was Stanley Mason, the president of Simco Incorporated of Connecticut. Mr. Mason is also an inventor and holds many patents. He described inventors as having a third eye. They have to look at and imagine things from a different perspective.

Workshops were also on the agenda and Mr. Litchfield is sharing information with us from one particularly good workshop entitled Making Hands-on Science in the Elementary Classroom.

My 5th-graders popped a giant puff ball which was donated to our class. I'm hoping not too many of the spores will take root, or the playground will be covered with puff balls next year. We had a small one that was not ready to release its spores and we have another fairly big one that we are letting dry out to see what will happen. We are waiting for our current book order to come in before starting our next book report. We are planning to have small groups read and discuss a selection. One book on order is called "My Teacher is an Alien" and several can hardly wait to begin that choice.

The 6th-graders are beginning a group book project on "Tuck Everlasting," by Natalie Babbitt. She is a popular author and often gives the reader something to think about. Their children's books are being published this week and some will be read to the younger grades. In social studies their South American Indian projects were due this past Friday. Maine's favorite topic, Weather, is their next science unit.

We are still collecting the Campbell labels and will accept any that you have to offer. We are making plans for Halloween.

WILLIAM 'BILL' WILLIAMS

Lt. William "Bill" Williams, 57, of North Bethel, died unexpectedly Friday, Oct. 13, 1989, at Bryant Pond.

He was born in Auburn, July 30, 1932, the son of Horace and Luella Williams. He attended Auburn area schools, and graduated from Edward Little High School, Auburn, in 1952. He served in the U.S. Army for 15 years, serving in Korea, Germany and the United States. Most recently, Lt. Williams was with the Oxford County Sheriff's Department, where he worked for 16 years.

He was a member of the Bethel Masonic Lodge and the Kora Shrine Temple. He was also a member of the International Order of Oddfellows, South Paris.

Lt. Williams lived in Bethel the past 14 years, coming from South Paris. He married Dolores Lane Tyler on June 7, 1981.

He is survived by his wife of Bethel; two sons, Theodore Williams of Stagg Falls, and William A. Williams Jr. of Lisbon Falls; a stepson, Greg Tyler of Bethel; three daughters, Tanya Eltingwood of Limestone, Judith Williams of Harrison, and Stacey Williams of Harrison; four brothers, Charlie Williams of Buckfield, Clayton Cotton of Center Ossipee, N.H., Donald Williams of Auburn, and Horace Williams of Norway; four sisters, Alice Saucier of Lisbon Falls, Evelyn Zawadzka of Stafford Springs, Conn., Ruth Strom of Auburn, and Marian Eaton of Lewiston; and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the Bethel United Methodist Church, led by the Rev. Lisa Vonderheide and Pastor Rodney Hanscom. Law enforcement officials from the state, county, towns within the county, and New Hampshire served as escorts and closed off Main Street to traffic. Interment was in the Evergreen Cemetery, in Auburn. In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the American Diabetes Association, Maine Affiliate, Augusta 04330.

MAURICE E. PALMER

Maurice E. Palmer, 56, of Andover, died Monday, Oct. 16, 1989, at Rumford Community Hospital shortly after arrival. He had resided at Pine Street, Andover, where he had lived for most of his life.

He was born in Canton, June 22, 1933, the son of James and Amelia Marston Palmer. He attended Andover schools and was a machine operator at the Andover Wood Products Co. for more than 25 years. He attended the Andover Congregational Church and was an avid hunter and fisherman.

Mr. Palmer was married in Mexico, Jan. 16, 1960, to Edith White, who survives. Of Andover. Other survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Richard (Rhonda) Jodrey of Andover, and Miss Robin Palmer of Andover; four sons, Edward Palmer of Andover, Clendon Palmer of Rangley, and Russell Palmer and Warren Palmer, both of Lexington, Ky.; four brothers, Stanley and Merton, both of Mexico, James of Stratton, and Raymond of Portland; two sisters, Mrs. Alma Leavitt of Southbridge, Mass., and Mrs. Kathleen Morton of Rumford, and five grandchildren. He was predeceased by a brother, Claude Palmer of Portland.

Funeral services will be Thursday, at 2 p.m., at the Andover Congregational Church in Andover, with the Rev. E. Marriot Churchill officiating. Interment in the Woodlawn Cemetery, Andover. Friends are invited to call at Meade & Son Funeral Home, 3 Franklin St., Rumford, 2-4 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. Wednesday. Those who desire may contribute to the Andover Congregational Church in Andover in his memory.

JULIETTE M. PRATT

Juliette M. Pratt, 81, of 78 Winter St., Lewiston, died Wednesday, Oct. 11, 1989, at Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston.

Born in Auburn, April 24, 1908, she was the daughter of Joseph and Zaimere Blanchette Levesque. She was educated in Auburn schools.

She married Orville (Tony) Pratt, who died April 4, 1955. She was a resident of Bethel for several years, beginning in the late 1930s, while Mr. Pratt was station agent for the Grand Trunk Railroad. She was employed in the housekeeping department of Central Maine Medical Center prior to her retirement in 1983. She was a member of Saint Peter and

Several years ago, the Legislature investigated the impact of leaking underground oil storage tanks on Maine's environment and ground water resources. The examination turned up startling information not only about the sheer number of underground tanks in Maine, but the immediate threat that these tanks pose to our drinking water as they begin to rust, decompose and eventually leak.

In response to this dilemma, the Legislature enacted a law that provided for the scheduled removal of all potentially dangerous underground tanks in Maine. The Legislature also passed a $2 million bond issue to help lower-income homeowners finance the removal of these tanks. The bond issue was overwhelmingly approved by Maine voters in November of 1988.

More recently, the Legislature enacted a temporary increase to the oil conveyance tax to raise $3 million in additional funding for tank removal and replacement. This money is being distributed by the Maine State Housing Authority (MSHA) through its Underground Oil Storage Tank Removal Program. The program will provide grants to pay the cost or an interest-free loan (depending on your income) for removal, disposal and replacement of these underground tanks.

To be eligible for the MSHA program you must be a homeowner with an underground oil tank (at least 10 percent below ground level); gasoline, kerosene and other petroleum product tanks are eligible. Persons who removed their tanks after Nov. 8, 1988 in anticipation of the program may apply for reimbursement if they meet certain income requirements. Finally, your underground tank must be registered with the Department of Environmental Protection as required by Maine law.

If your annual income is $24,000 or less you may be eligible for a 100 percent grant for the cost of removing and disposing of your tank, its contents and associated piping and for purchase and installation of a new tank.

If your annual income is between $24,000 and $45,000, you may be eligible

SUNDAY RIVER SKI RESORT hopes to be a home away from home for school students and other youth groups this winter. In order to provide affordable housing for the expected youthful visitors—and their chaperones and bus drivers—the skiway is constructing two ski dorms. Each dorm will be 10,000 square feet; the project is expected to cost $2.6 million. The Department of Environmental Protection approved the project last month and construction is already well underway.

for a five-year, interest-free loan for the removal, disposal and replacement of your underground tank.

You may also be eligible for the program if your net worth (difference between your assets and your liabilities) is equal to or less than $20,000 or twice the cost of removal, disposal and replacement of your tank, whichever is greater.

More specific information about eligibility for the Underground Oil Storage Tank Removal Program can be obtained by contacting the Maine State Housing Authority, toll free, at 1-800-452-4668 or deaf telephone, 1-800-452-4663. They can also provide you with information regarding what types of tanks are eligible under the program and who is qualified to remove the tanks.

If you are a business owner with a underground tank problem, you may be interested in a new removal program to be offered by the Finance Authority of Maine. I will be writing about this legislation next week. In the meantime, enjoy the autumn colors.
